1. Run the MacOs application "ZentyQuickShare.dmg" (version 2.0.5.212) on the MacOS systems (Sonoma V14.6.1, Sequoia 15.0.1, Sequoia 15.1)
   When the following window appears, click "Allow"

When the "Open System Settings" option shows up, click to enter the system settings to confirm Keystroke Input enabled.

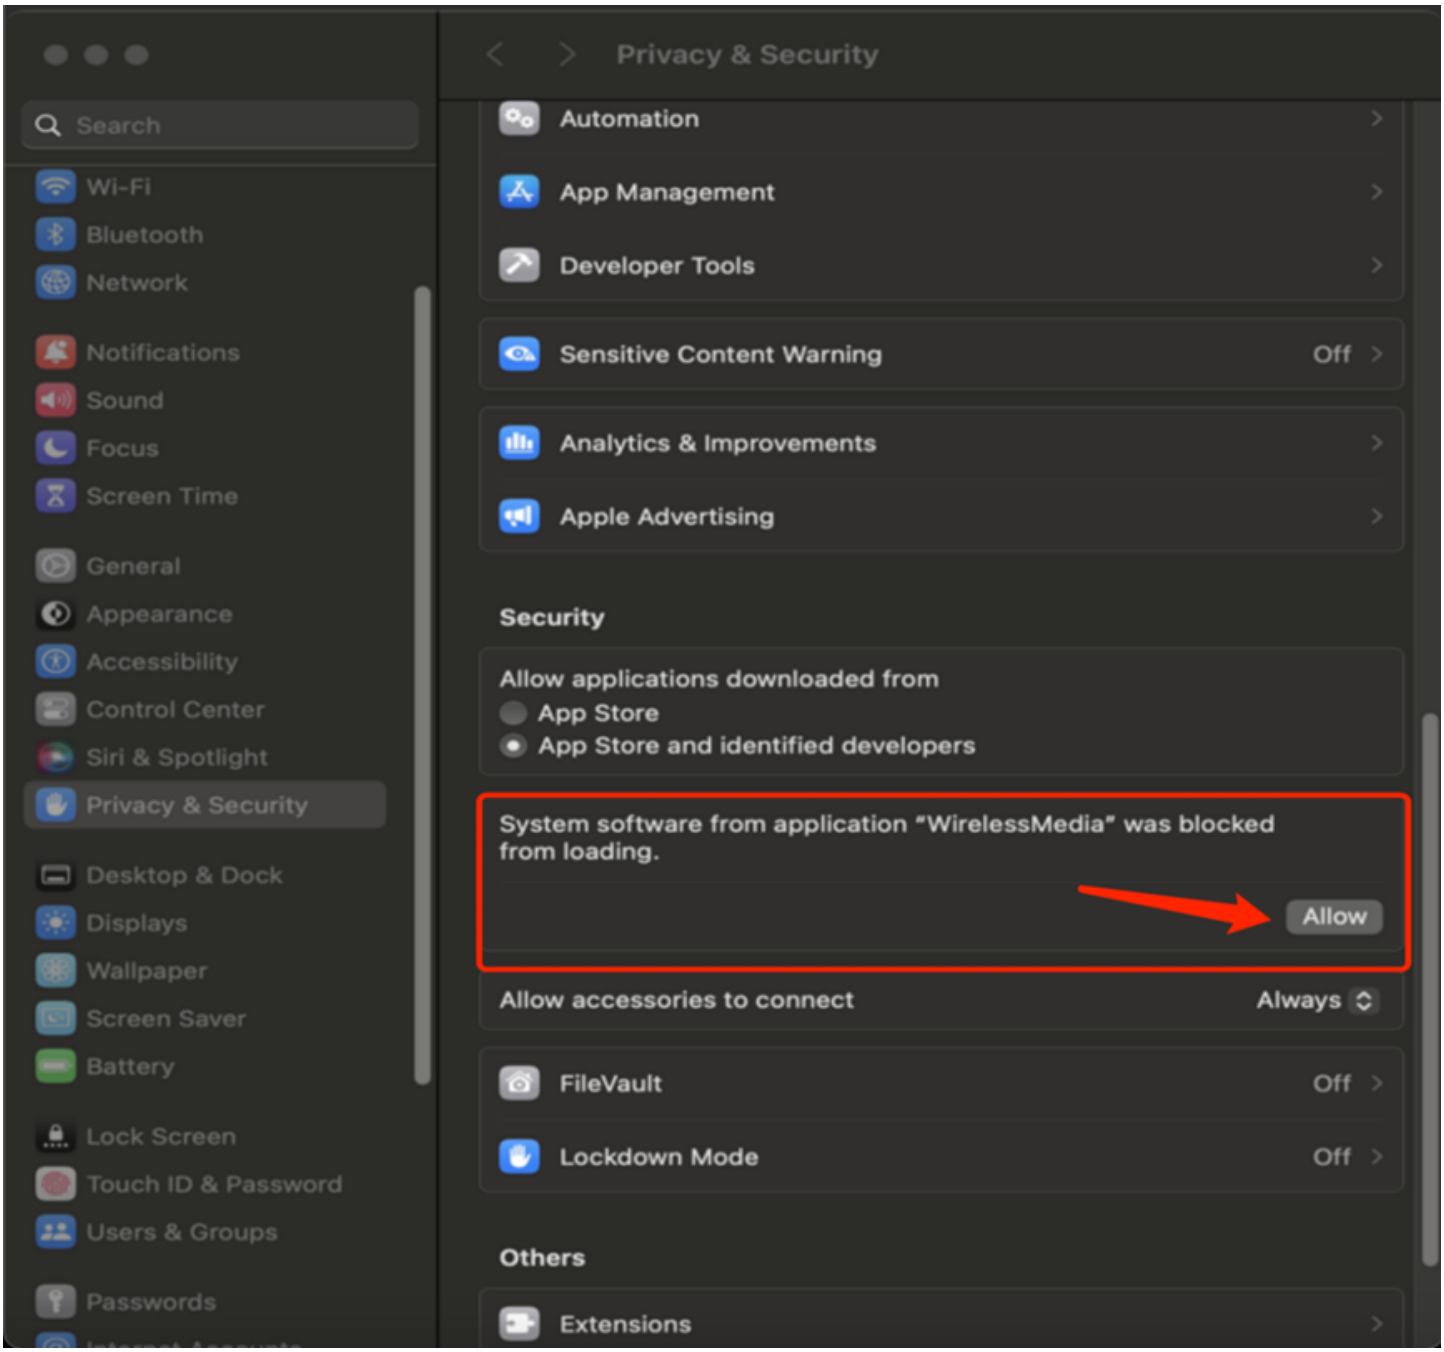

---

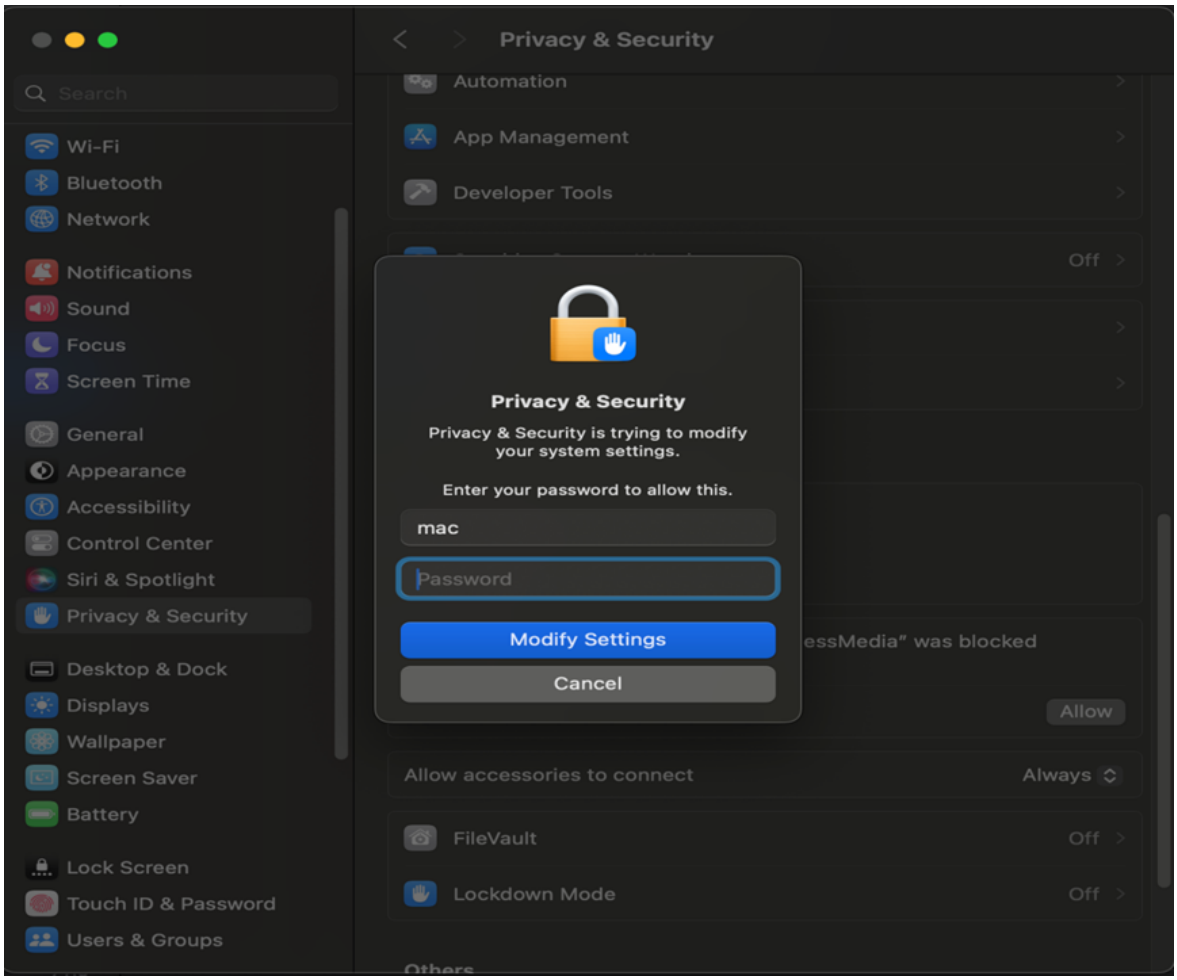

2. On Sonoma MacOS, when the following window pops up:

Click "Open System Settings" or go directly to System Settings ->Privacy & Security, as shown below:

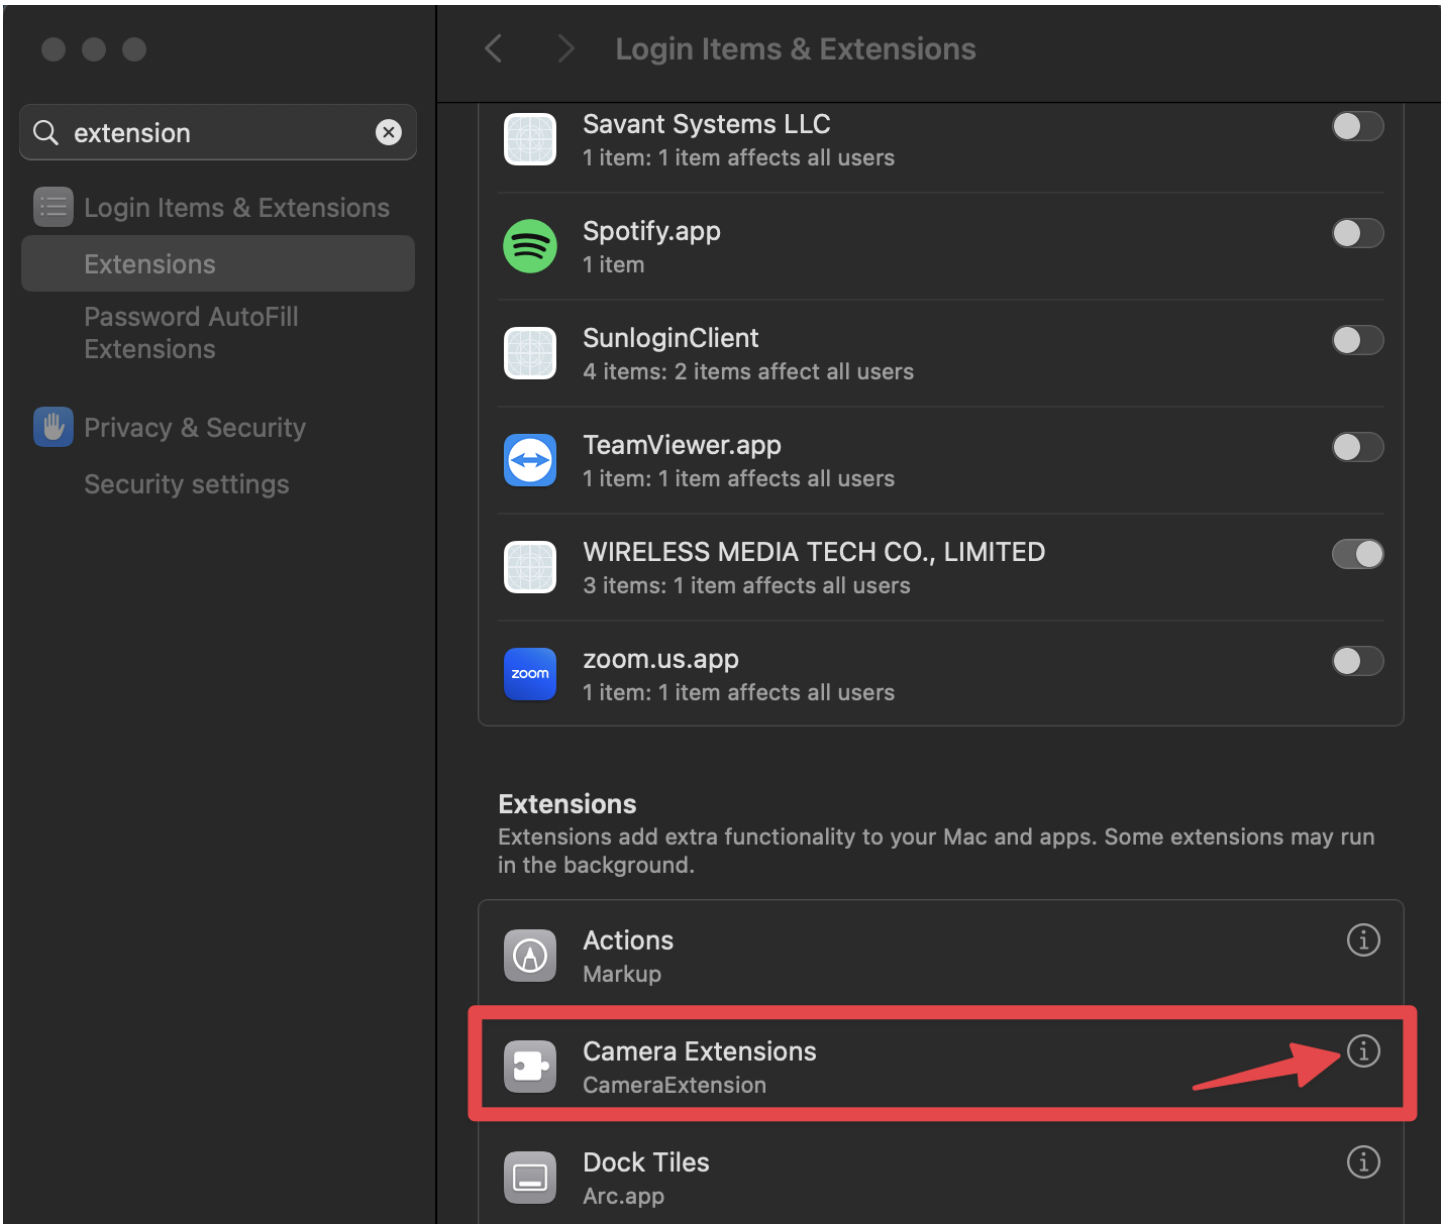

Click "Allow", and the user will enter the password prompt box pop up, as shown in the following figure:

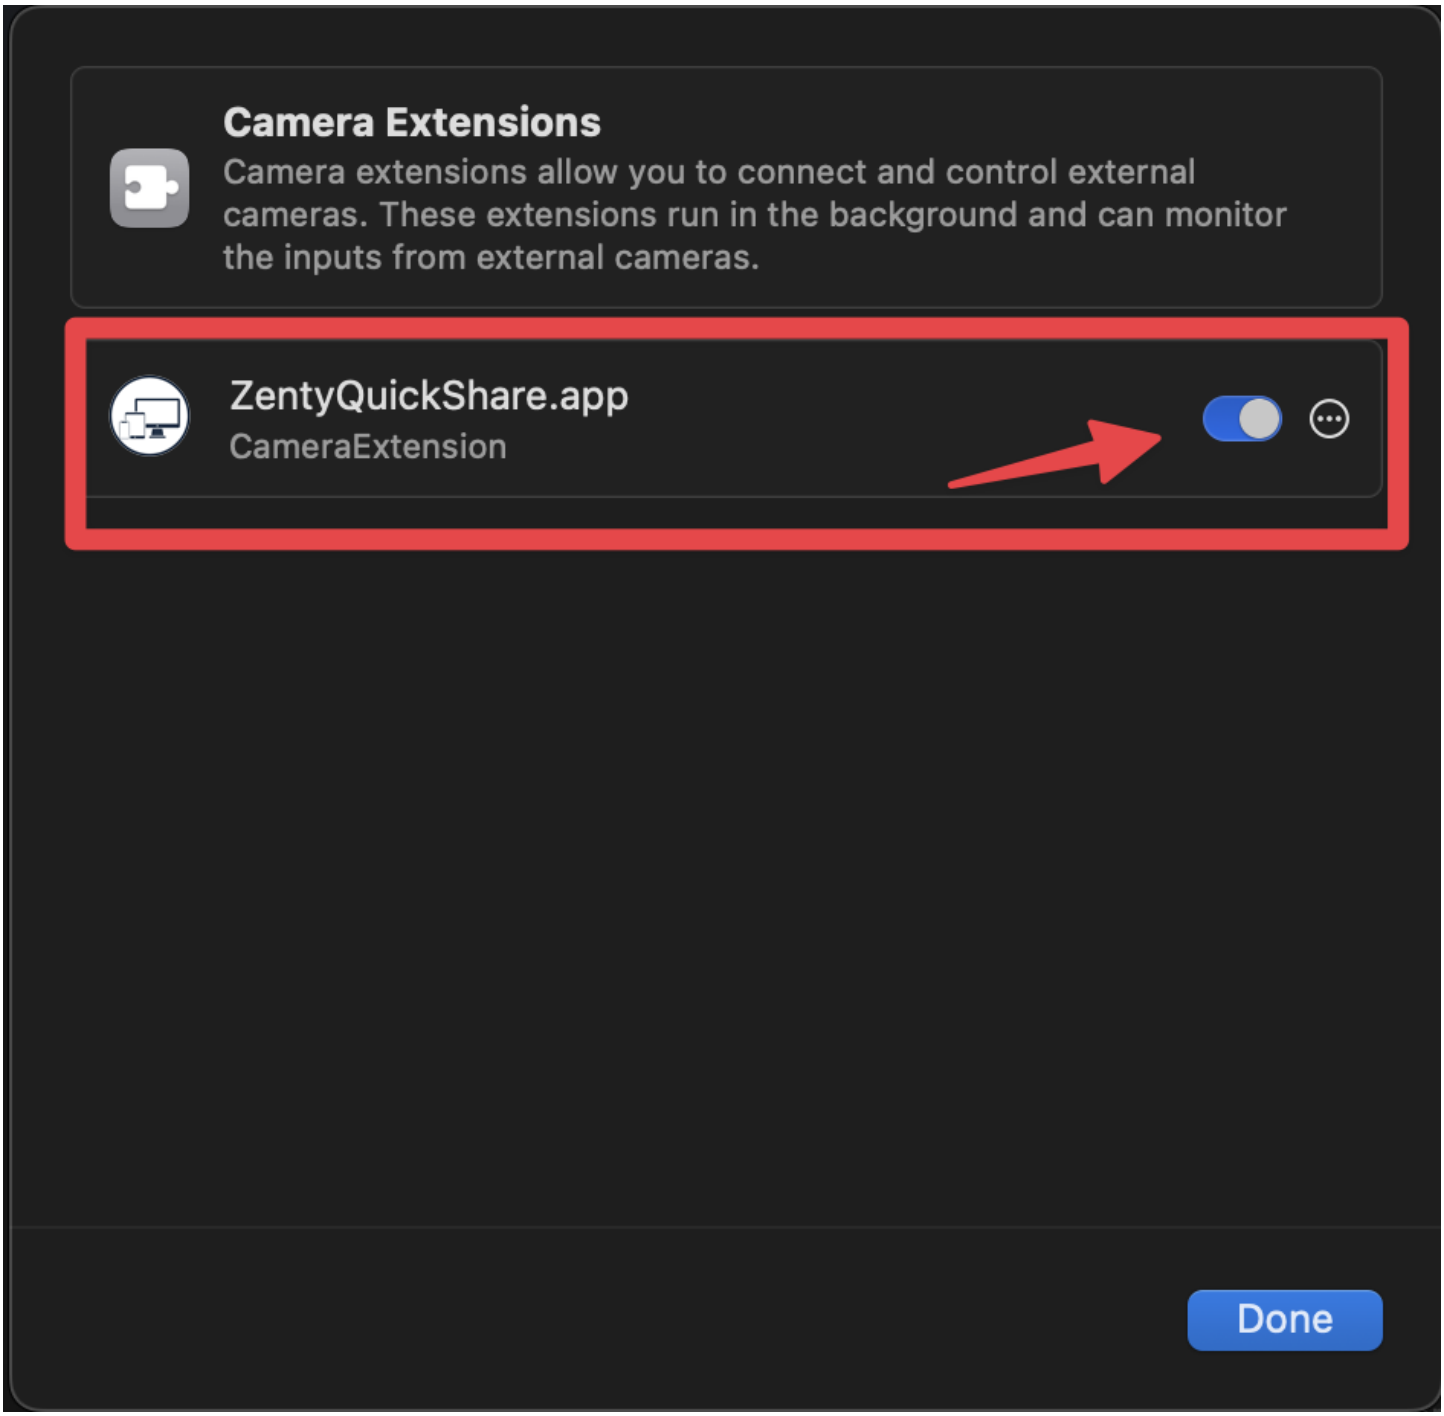

Enter the correct user login password, press enter or click "Modify Settings", and the Virtual Meeting Camera device will be recognized by the meeting software.

On Sequoia system (15.0.1 or 15.1)

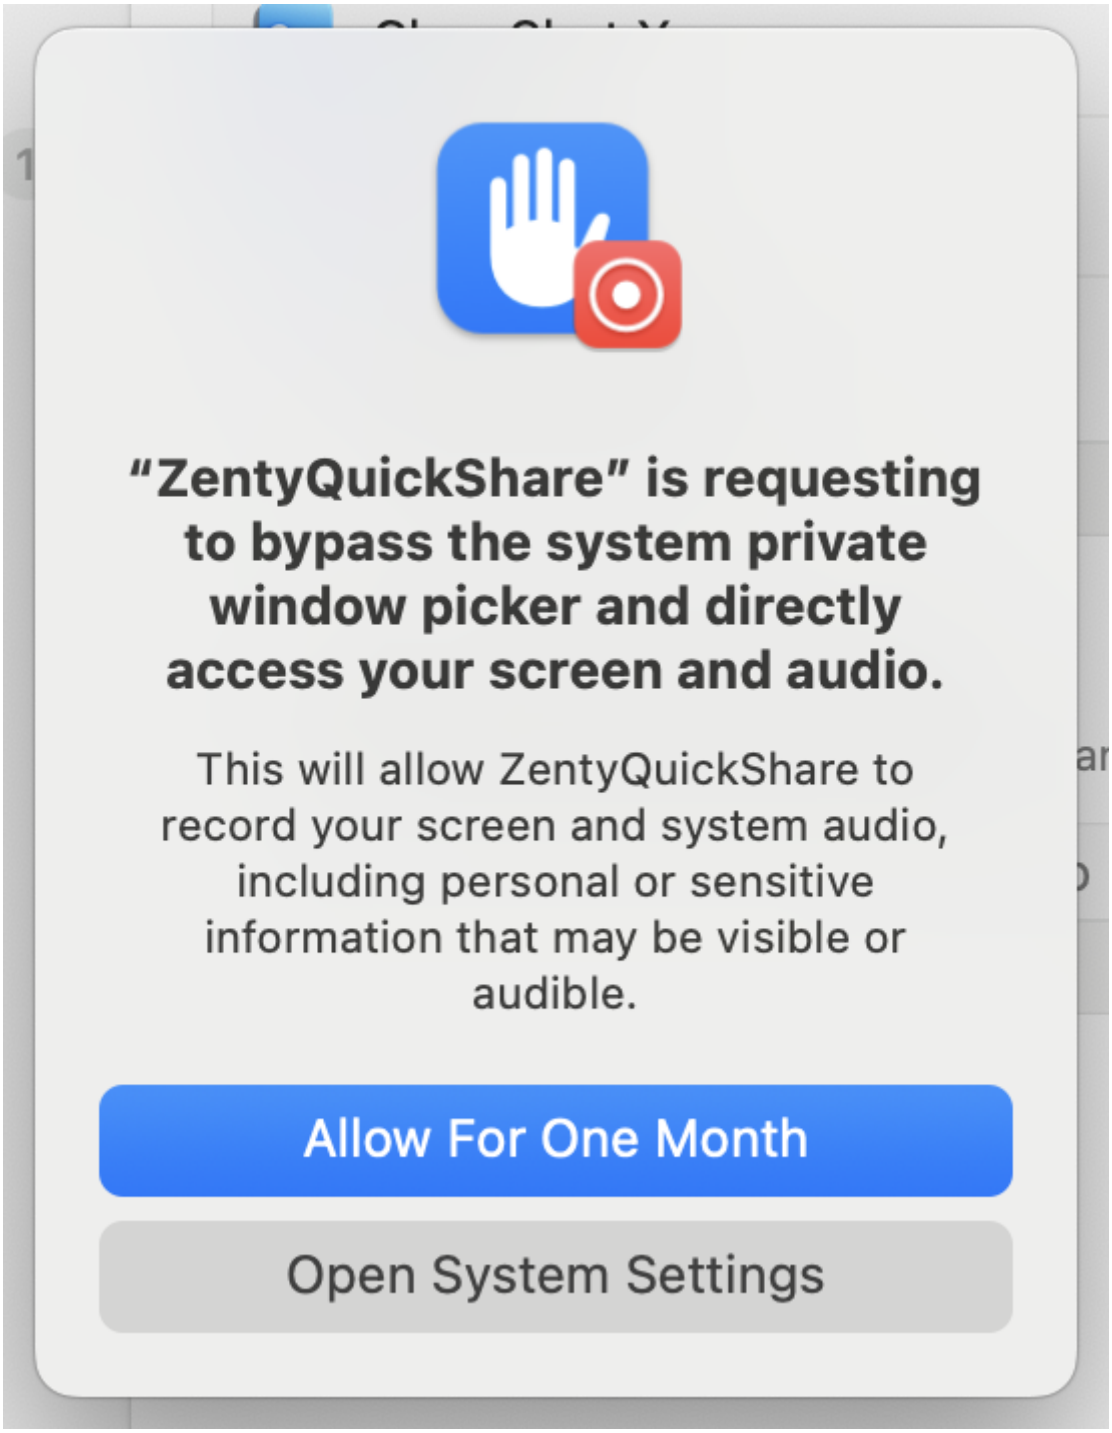

Search for extension and locate "Camera Extensions"

Click the Info button to show and enable "ZentyQuickShare.app" in Camera Extensions.

To share the screen from MacOS, click "Allow" button to proceed

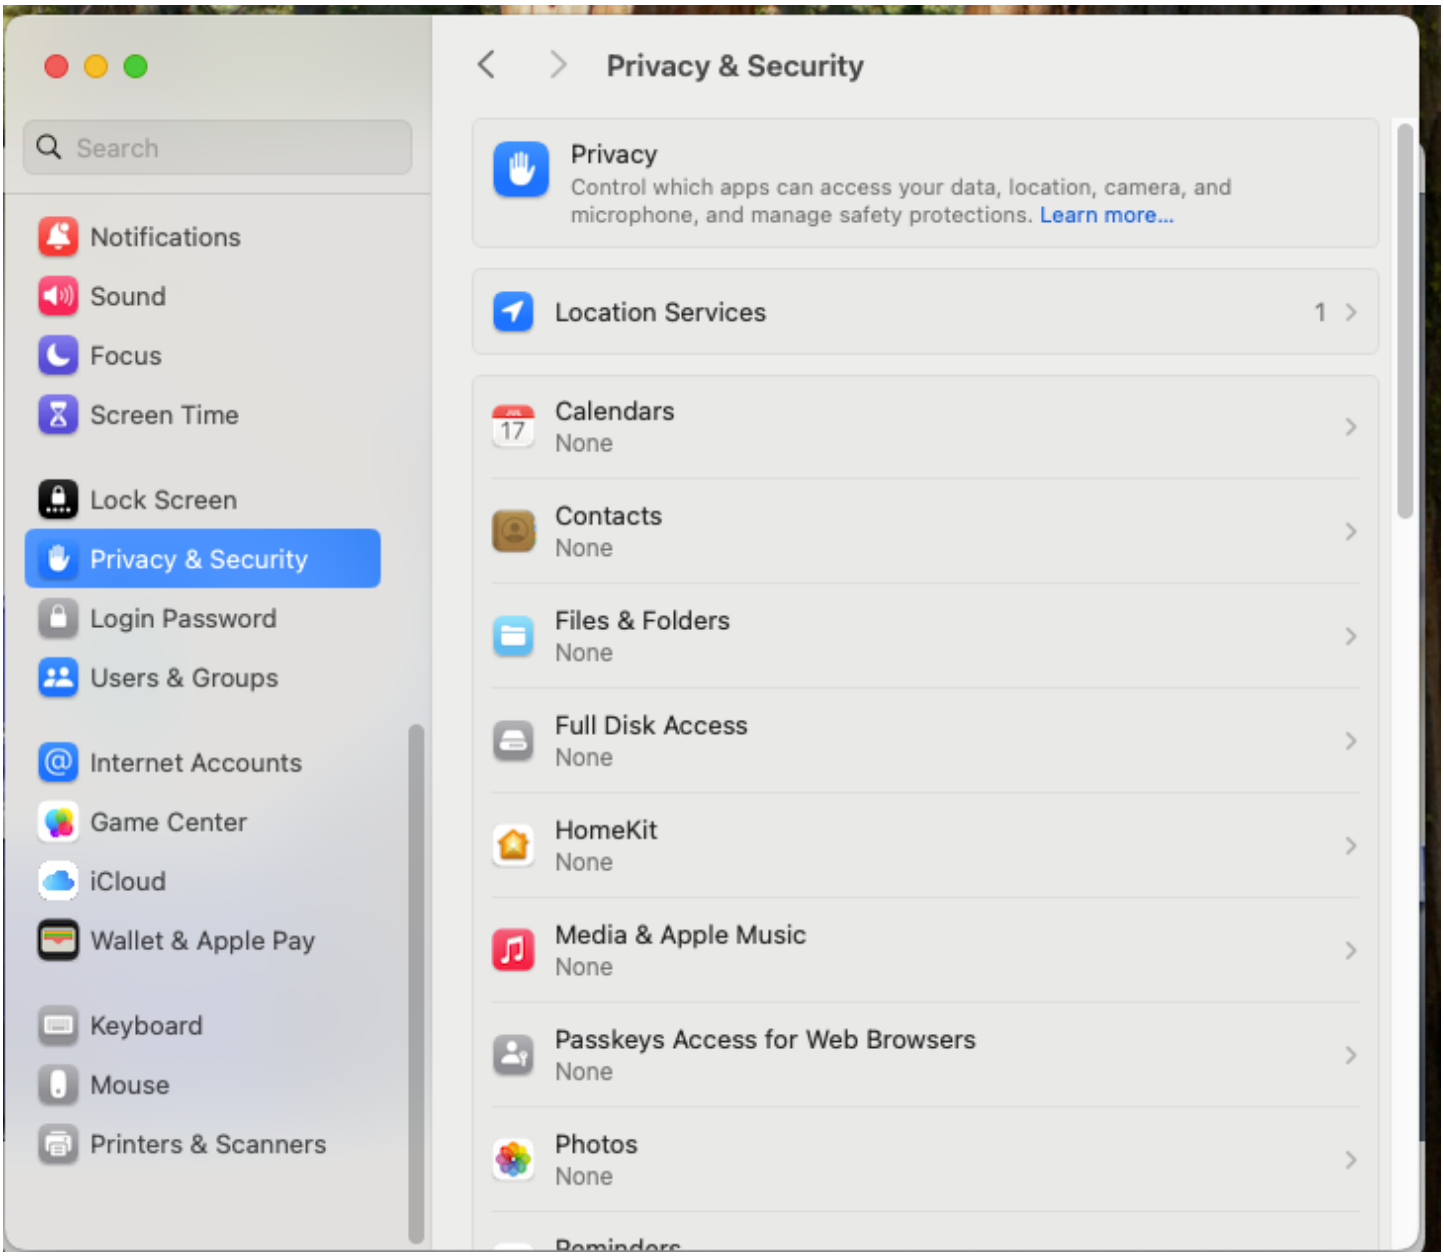

To record the content of your computer screen and audio during conference (Team or Zoom), please make sure ZentyQuickShare is added as an enabled option

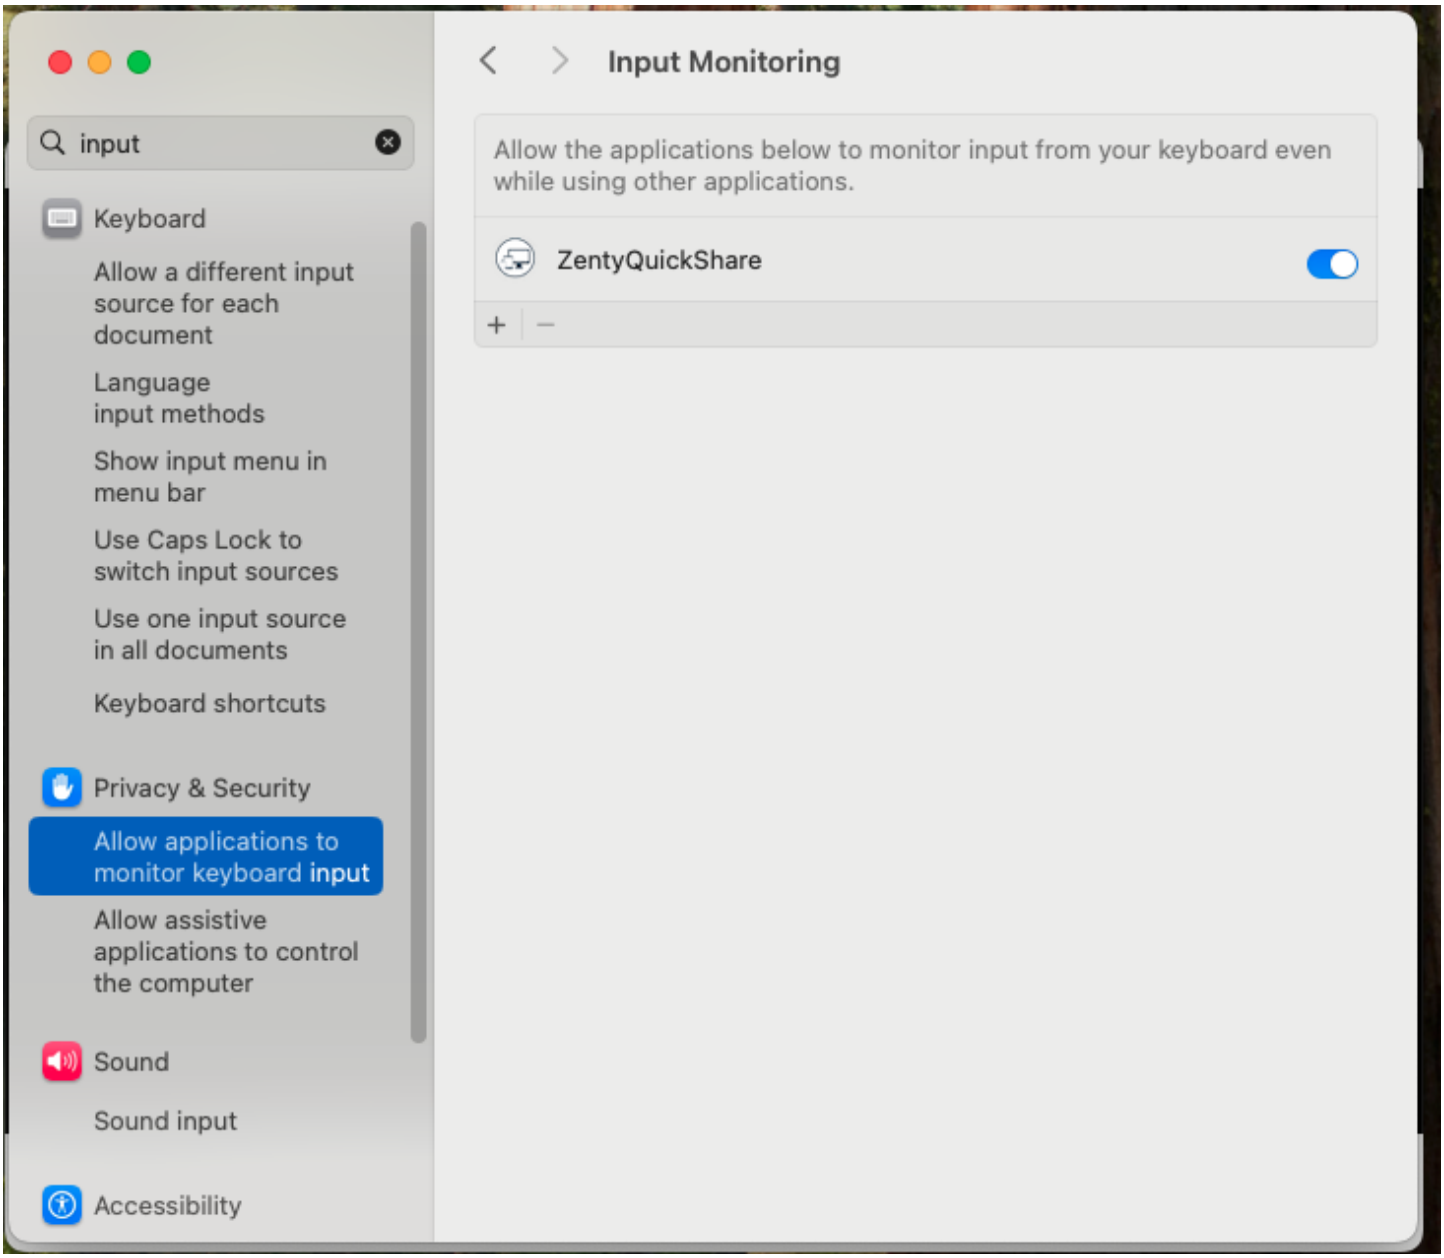

Important Note for MacOS 15.1

There are a few settings in the Privacy and Security section under System Settings that must be checked to make sure the ZentyQuickShare app has been enabled for virtual cameras to work while using dongle doing casting:

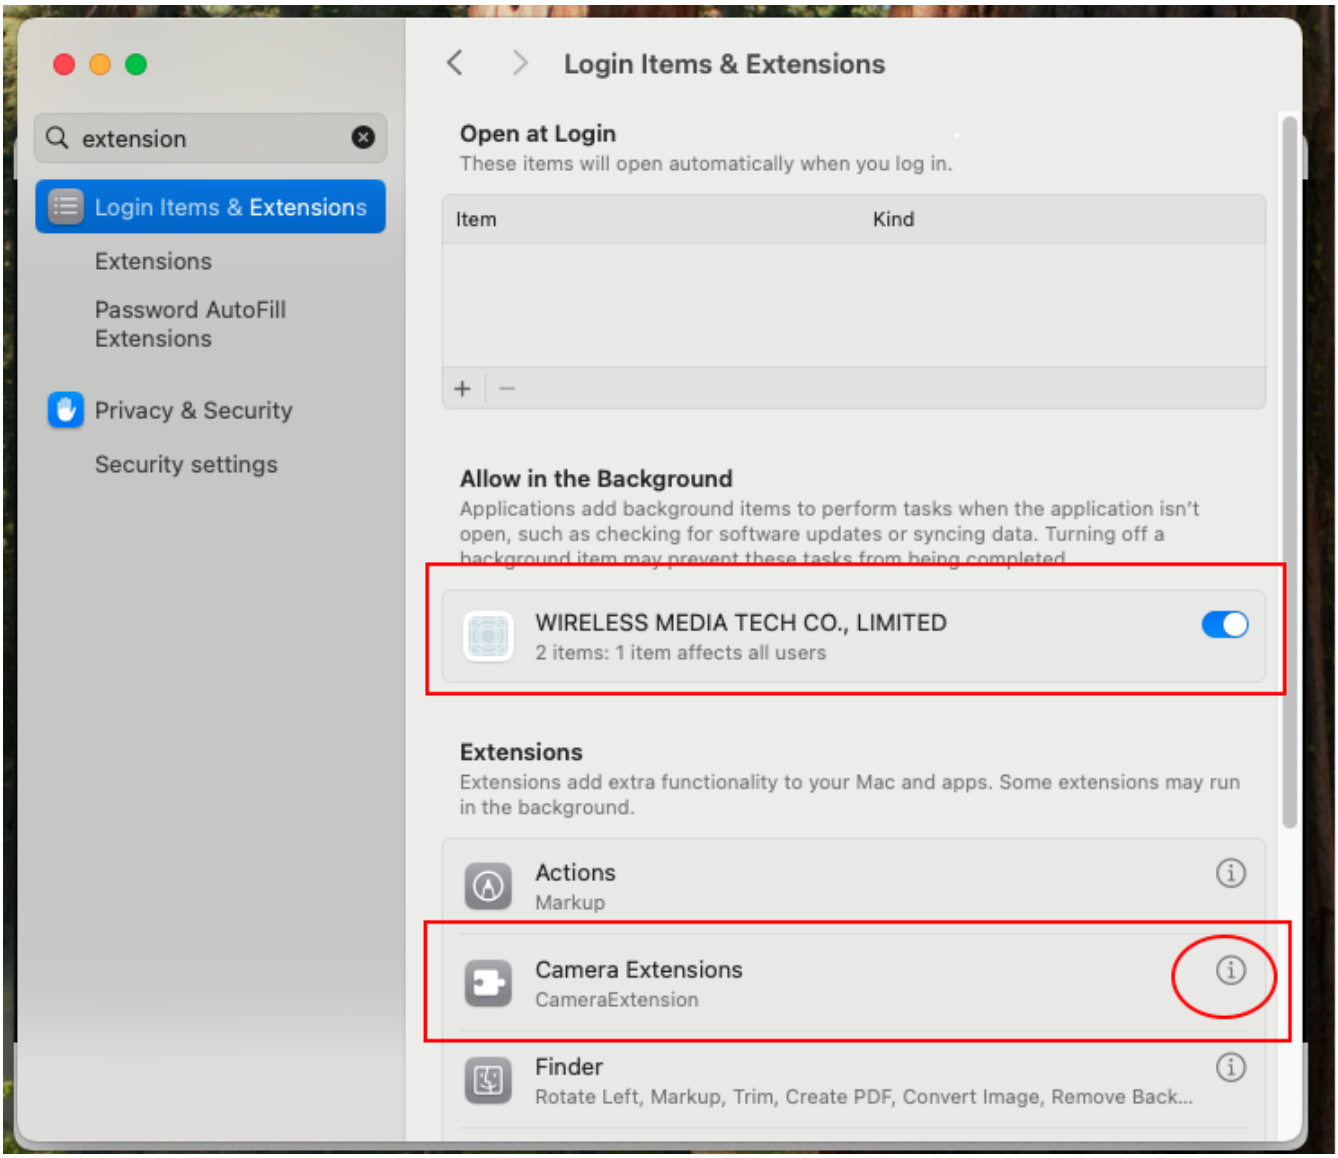

Input Monitoring

Search for "input monitoring" under Privacy & Extension and make sure ZentyQuickShare is listed as an enabled option

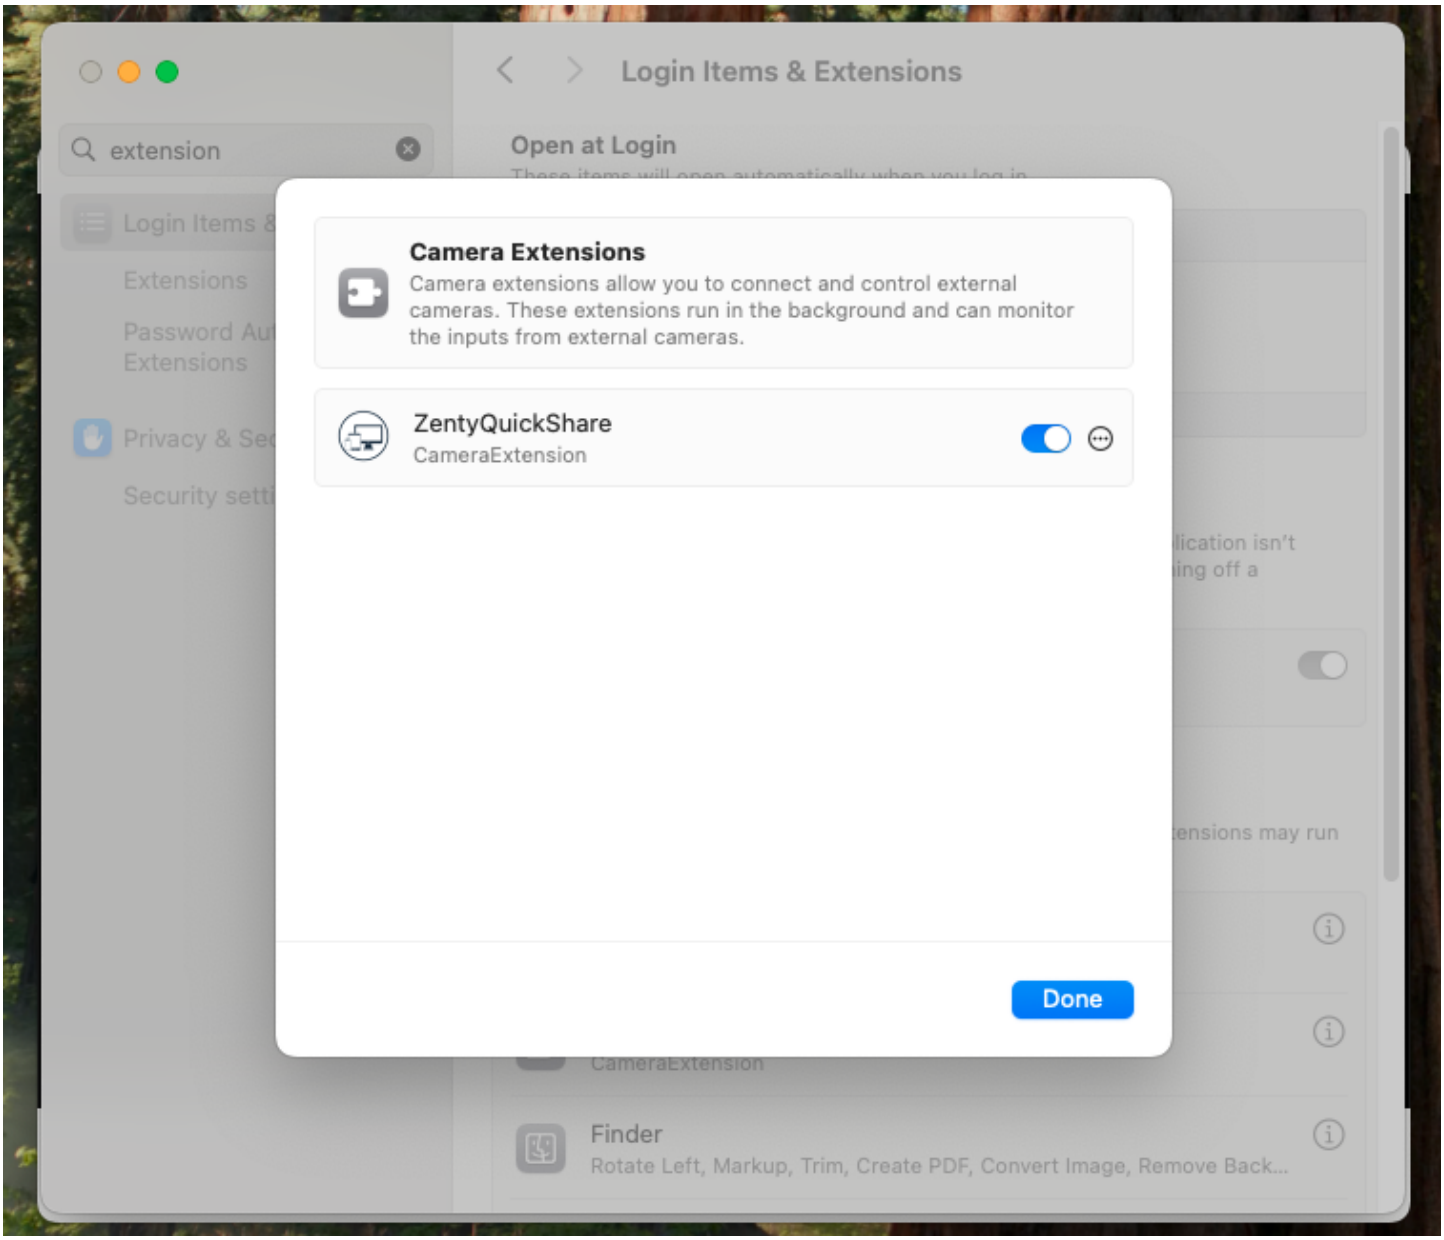

Camera Extension

Search for "Extension" and make sure Wireless Media Tech CO., LIMITED is enabled

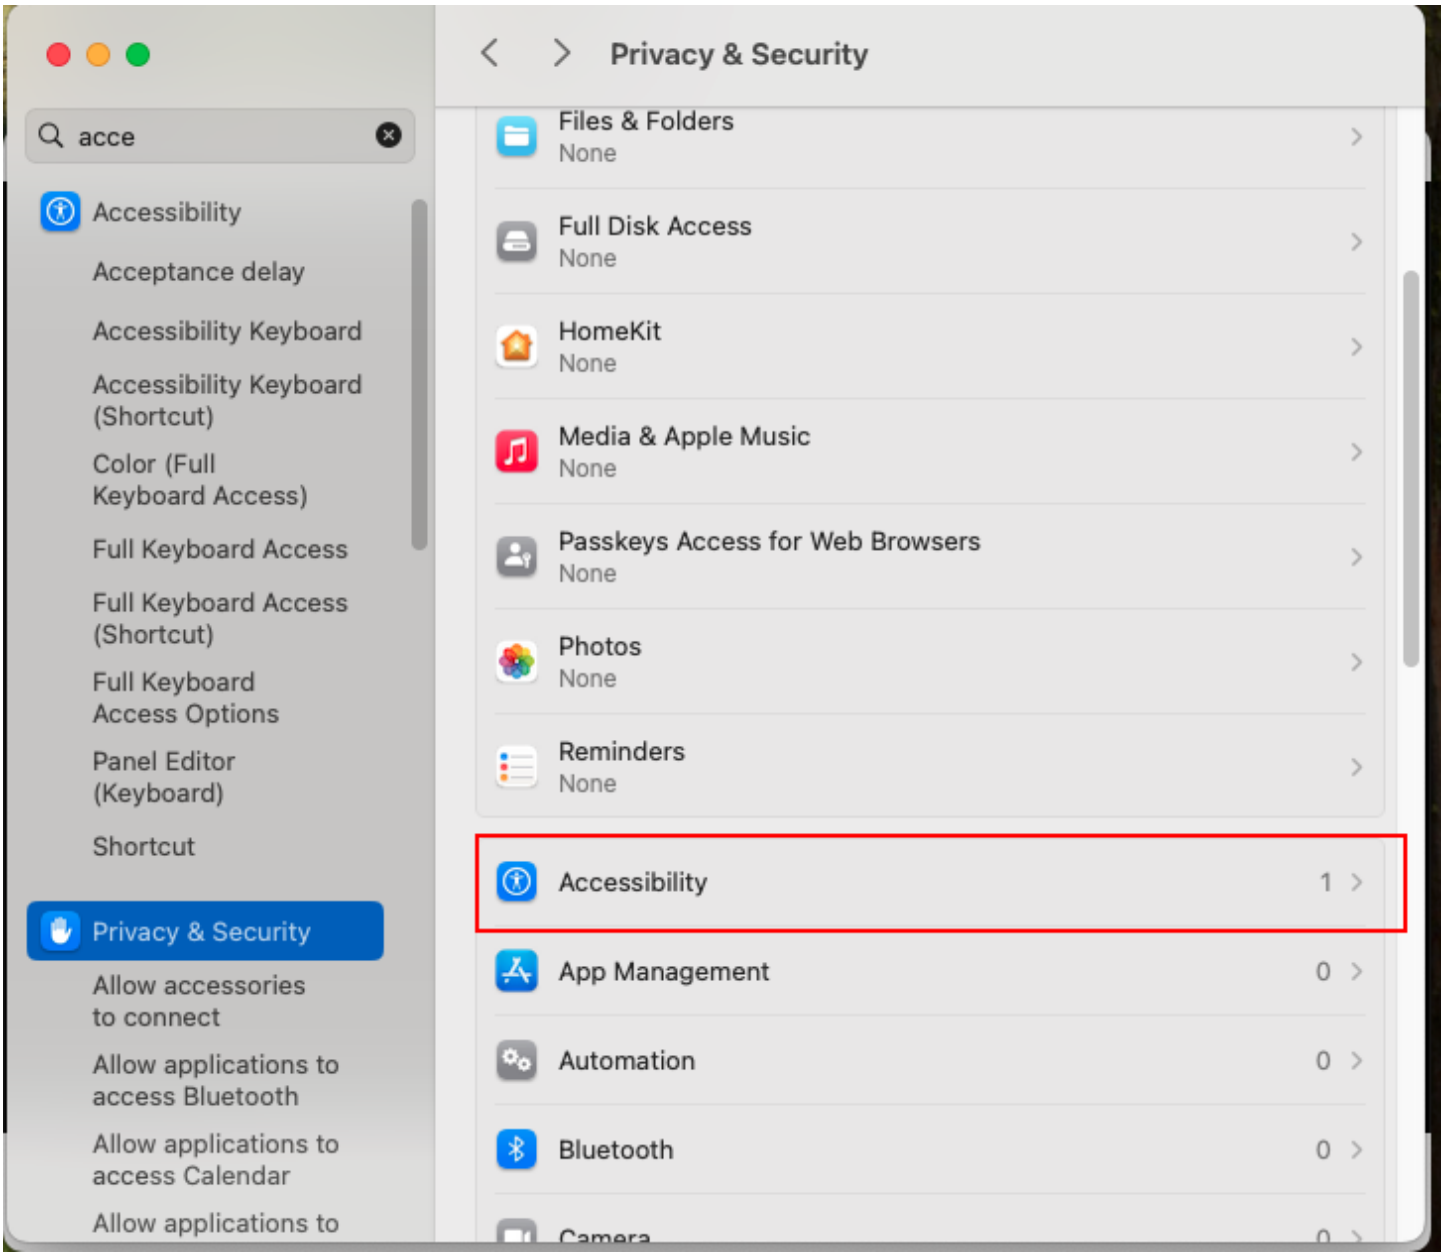

Click the Info icon next to Camera Extension to enable "ZentyQuickShare"

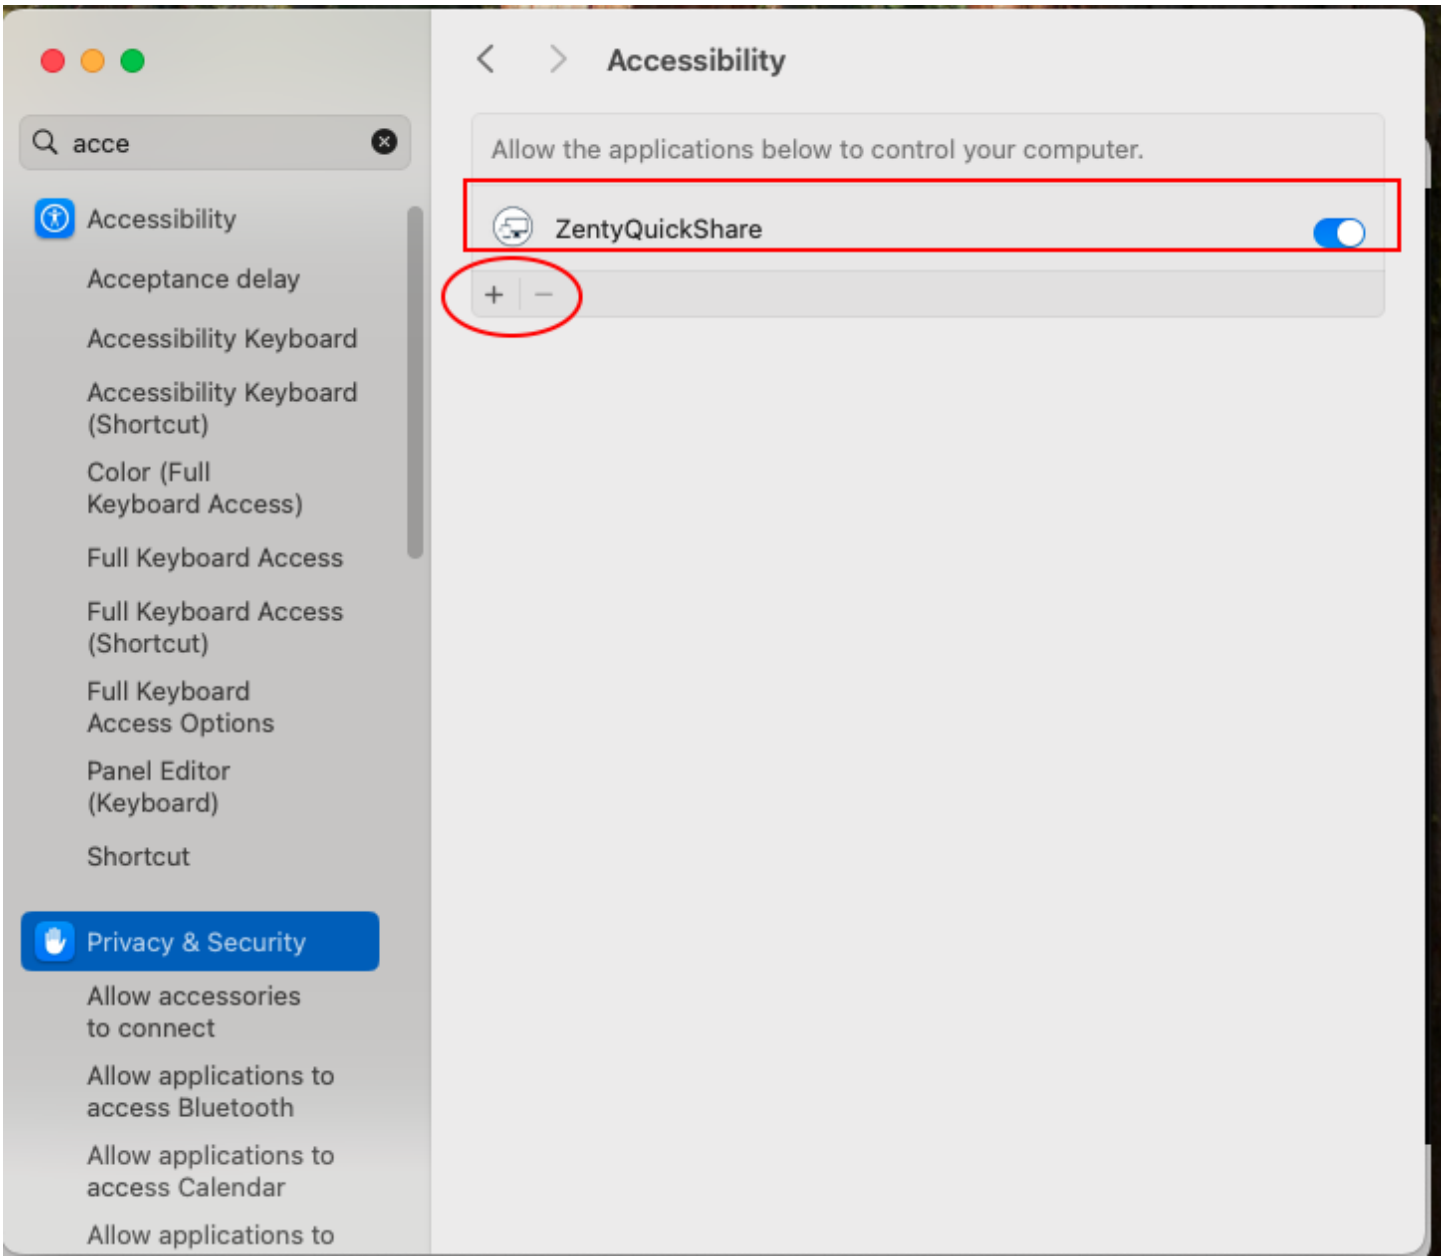

Accessibility Enabed

Search for accessibility under Privacy and Security

Add ZentyQuickShare in Accessibility if it is not listed as an enabled option
